JULY 8, 2020

The Central DeWitt Administrative Team has made great progress on our Return to Learn plans. We are not yet ready to release the full plans yet, as there are still hundreds of decisions to make and things to coordinate. It seems every decision we make creates another lengthy list of considerations. Our goal is to have the three detailed learning plans (in-person, online and hybrid) to you by July 31. As we proceed, we will share any and all information we can.

We have received several questions about the July 15 open enrollment deadline for online learning. That deadline is specific to long-term online learning that would be provided by another school district. As part of our plan, Central DeWitt Community School District will be offering a long-term online learning option where curriculum and instruction will be provided by an outside company. This company, Edgenuity, is the same online learning option most of our surrounding school districts will be using, as we are negotiating a regional consortium price together. This option will be for families who do not feel comfortable having their children physically attend school this fall and is different than our online learning plan, provided by our own school staff, if we are unable to return to school. There will be more details to come about this option but please know we will be providing this option for our families.

Also, the Clinton County Mask Task Force is graciously providing free masks for all students, faculty, and staff should they choose to wear them.

We are continuing to gather information from our Saber families, the Iowa Department of Education and our faculty and staff to make sure our plans will provide the safest, most beneficial, and thorough learning environment. Every student, every teacher, and every staff members' needs are being taken into consideration during this process. Thank you for your continued patience and support!
